RABBIT

A grass-eating mammal that lives in meadows and field edges.

1. What can it see, hear, or feel? Long ears swivel toward sounds, wide-set eyes watch all around, and a sniffing nose checks for danger.
2. Where does it live — and why? It lives in meadows and woodland edges, with soft soil to dig a tunnel system called a warren.
3. How does it send messages? It thumps its back feet hard to warn others, and a flash of white tail tells rabbits to run.
4. How does it learn? Young rabbits watch their mother and older rabbits to learn safe feeding spots and alarm signals.
5. What does this teach us? A calm rabbit is still watching and smelling everything — sensing trouble before it arrives.
